

UCLA

Student Learning Outcomes for the B.A. in Gender Studies

Students completing the Gender Studies B.A. will:

- demonstrate a working knowledge of the field of gender studies and an understanding of feminist issues across historical periods and transnational contexts.
- understand key theoretical approaches to the study of women, gender, and sexuality.
- apply a gender analysis to their everyday lives and real-life situations around them.
- recognize the capabilities and limits of different disciplinary and interdisciplinary research methods.
- demonstrate the ability to construct well-written analytic essays and give an oral presentation for a seminar or other suitable venue.
- conduct a research project that involves the consultation of scholarly literatures and presentation of evidence to support an argument.